The feminist implications of these crises in patriarchy and paternalism remain largely unexplored, as the films concentrate on male hierarchies of power, and the potential for a greater female contribution to reconfigurations of national and personal relationships is undeveloped. Moses in the Old Testament leads the Jews out of slavery towards their redemption in the promised homeland. In the midst of the economic decline – following drought and the end of slavery – in the province El perro de Brasil (Spanish Edition) Bahia in Northeastern Brazil, the poor of the backlands are attracted by the charismatic figure and simple religious teachings of Antonio Conselheiro called "The Counselor", who preaches that the end of the world is imminent and that the political chaos that surrounds the collapse of the Empire of Brazil and its replacement by a republic is the work of the devil. However, he is not there and the town is represented as a form of hell rather than R.
